

The Rhyme for RachelBy
Clifford
Howard

(Copyright, by Shortstory Pub. Co.)

Seated in a street car, Miss Marjorie Hollis was absorbed in the latest issue of the Literary Post. It contained this week a most unusual announcement, and it was this which now occupied her attention to the exclusion of all else. The announcement read as follows:

We, the undersigned, executors under the will of a person whose name we withhold for the present, desire to announce that, in accordance with the terms of said will, the sum of $250,000 will be paid to the first person who will submit to us a rhyme for the name Rachel. This bequest is based on the following conditions, viz.: 1. The rhyme must be a legitimate one. Dialect, foreign or invented words will not be considered. 2. This offer is limited to one year, dating from December 31, 1909.

In explanation of the foregoing offer it is deemed proper to state the following facts: Among the effects of the testator above referred to is an unfinished poem addressed to a lady whose full Christian name was Fedora Lillian Grace Lorain Hildegarde Louise Rachel. The said poem was written by the testator for the purpose of bringing into rhyme each one of the names aforementioned. He succeeded in writing six stanzas, in which the first six names were respectively introduced in accordance with his afore-said purpose; but he was unable to complete the poem because of his failure to find a rhyme for the last name—Rachel. For certain personal reasons he provided in his will that an attempt be made, in the manner above set forth, to discover such a rhyme.

As full conditions and all necessary information are contained in the foregoing announcement, the undersigned must decline to consider any inquiries for further explanation.

DUNDURRY & BORDEAU,
Attorneys-at-Law, Washington, D. C.

Circumstances compelled Marjorie Hollis to earn her living, and against these circumstances her aristocratic and artistic soul waged constant rebellion. Her family and her acquaintances generally regarded her as a spoiled child, troubled with extravagant tastes and a lack of practical sense. On her side, she felt that she was not understood nor properly appreciated—until she met Carter Dillington.

Like herself, Mr. Dillington was poor and had literary aspirations, and Marjorie felt that in him she had at last found a sympathetic fellow-mortal. He accepted special invitations to the house, but rarely called of his own accord, appearing content to ride home with her in the evening. He was excessively reserved—that was one of his peculiarities—so that notwithstanding the increasing familiarity of the acquaintanceship, Marjorie knew no more of his personal affairs at the end of nine months than she did during the first week.

There was one other subject on which he was equally reticent, and that was the discussion regarding the rhyme for "Rachel." The remarkable offer in connection with this matter was a subject of unending curiosity and discussion in literary circles; but Carter Dillington pointedly avoided every allusion to it. To Marjorie, on the contrary, it was one of alluring interest.

She hesitated a long time before venturing to speak to Mr. Dillington about it. His peculiar aversion to the whole matter embarrassed her. The mere mention of the name "Rachel" disturbed him, and her occasional efforts to lead the conversation around to the subject were promptly frustrated.

Finally, however, she decided to appeal to him for help. Only one more week remained, and she beheld her dreams of wealth fading into the dull reality of drudgery. So as he was about to take his departure after a short call on Christmas eve, she said suddenly: "If a person were to find a rhyme for 'Rachel' it would make him famous, wouldn't it?"

"I suppose it would," he answered dryly.

"And it would make him rich?"

"Oh, yes." Then in the same breath he abruptly changed the conversation.

"Perhaps, Miss Hollis, it may interest you to know that I expect in the next week or two to come into possession of a small fortune, and I hope then to be married," and holding out his hand he bade Marjorie good night.

"Good night," she responded mechanically; and as the door closed she staggered into the parlor, and, throwing herself upon the sofa, burst into a torrent of passionate tears.

Suddenly her sobbing ceased. She sat up, bewildered, startled. In the midst of the turmoil of her troubled spirit there had burst upon her—without warning, without thought—a rhyme for "Rachel!"

Two days later Marjorie Hollis was in Washington; and on the morning of December 27 she walked into the office of Dundurry & Bordeaux and quietly announced to those two gentlemen that she had come to claim the $250,000 for a rhyme for "Rachel."

For a moment the two men stared at her without uttering a sound.

Mr. Dundurry was the first to find his voice. "Impossible!" he ejaculated. Then noticing the sudden flush upon the girl's face he checked himself. "Pardon me, my dear young lady; I did not mean to doubt your word; but you have announced us beyond measure. Let me explain," and he placed his chair beside hers.

"The extraordinary offer to which you have responded was made in compliance with the will of our late client, Mr. Benjamin F. Morton. He was a trifle eccentric, and one of his hobbies was writing poetry. He took a great fancy to a nephew of his and spared no money to have the boy well educated. The old gentleman himself had a very limited education, and he was determined that his nephew should not be handicapped as he had been. Well, just about the time the boy got through college the old gentleman struck a snag in this poem of his about Fedora Lillian Hildegarde et al., and he called upon his nephew to help him out with a rhyme for 'Rachel.' The young man informed him that there was no such rhyme, but his uncle refused to believe it. He insisted that as the lad had had a college education he could find a rhyme if he chose. Well, the upshot of it was that the old gentleman took it into his head that his nephew was obstinate and ungrateful, and he cast him off. A short time before he died, however, he finally concluded that perhaps there really was no rhyme for 'Rachel,' and he decided to reinstate his nephew in his will; but with this proviso: That a rhyme should first be advertised for and that should any person produce such a rhyme within a year, then the money should go to such person, instead of the nephew.

"As the executors, we, of course, followed the provisions of the will, but we were definitely satisfied there was no such rhyme. And yet you say you have found one. I am free to say it seems incredible, incredible. Still, at the same time, the offer is a bona fide one and will be carried out to the letter if your rhyme proves to be a legitimate one. It will certainly prove a most astonishing revelation to us as to the nephew, Carter Dillington."

Marjorie felt that she was about to win.

"May I have just a moment to think?" she asked faintly.

"Certainly, certainly! I did not mean to hurry you. Of course, I understand, you feel a trifle agitated but take your time, and you'll recall the rhyme in a minute or two."

Several moments passed in silence then Marjorie arose. She faced the two lawyers, and with a tremor in her voice she struggled bravely to utter, she said slowly: "I have not forgotten the rhyme; but—but I have decided not to submit it."

It was New Year's day when Marjorie again saw Carter Dillington. He called late in the afternoon. Why had he come? she asked herself. Was it to torment her? To cause her wound to bleed afresh? He appeared not to heed her constrained manner nor the quick flushes that reddened her cheeks.

"Marjorie," he said suddenly, with an impulsiveness and a familiarity he had never before manifested; "you have wished me a happy New Year. Do you know that it is you alone who can make the year happy for me—supremely happy? I did not dare express my feelings before I was absolutely sure that I could offer you the comforts and the pleasures you deserve. Now, I am independent—wealthy; and you, Marjorie, will you share my fortune with me?"

It was late ere the lovers were ready to part. "Is it any wonder," he was saying, as he lingeringly prepared to leave, "that I avoided the subject of my uncle's outlandish offer? Supposing that by some possibility there had been a rhyme for 'Rachel,' supposing some one had succeeded in finding it! But thank fortune, dear, there is none!"

"Yes, but there is a rhyme for 'Rachel,'" she answered softly, casting down her eyes to hide her sudden emotion. "Would you like to hear it? Let us sit down here—on the sofa, and I will tell it to you."

She waited a moment after they were seated, and then in a half tremulous whisper she recited the following lines:

"A fitting rhyme has long been found
For each and all of these—
Fedora, Lillian, Grace, Lorain
And Hildegarde, Louise;
And in these names themselves we find
The hidden rhyme for Rachel:
For, lo, the letters of these names
Are F, L, G, L, H, L."

Then in the quiet glow of the midnight firelight she told him her little story.

Christmas at Sea

By Admiral Bob Evans

"N Christmas morning," said Admiral Evans (Fighting Bob), "I thank God that he has been three times as much water as land."

"Every old seadog will join me in this. The sea is his home; he loves it as the farmer loves his broad acres. Apart from it he is restless and dissatisfied, but with a voyage ahead of him he is as happy as a clam at high tide. No true sailor would exchange Christmas at sea for one on shore. It would be like Thanksgiving dinner without the turkey."

"Of all the Christmases spent at sea the one that rises before me most vividly is that of 1885, when the federal army and the gunboat fleet were trying to capture Fort Fisher. The only presents we received, and they came fast and furious, were solid shot and shell from the guns of the enemy. But this didn't destroy our sense of humor. The boys would write on each solid shot or shell before placing it in the gun, 'presented by,' and add the name of the vessel from which it was fired. Mighty few bullets at the fort that day lacked this Christmas greeting. All the 'gunners' caught the spirit of the grim jest, for the fighting line is no place for serious faces."

"Despite the excitement of the fierce combat we managed to have the mastsheads of all the ships trimmed with Christmas green, even though the sailors had to risk their lives in going ashore to get them, and you may be assured the sentiment of the day was not wasted."

"Last year Santa Claus followed our fleet of 18 vessels. He anticipated our 12,000-mile voyage and furnished us in advance with the pick of his best. On board the supply vessels when we sailed from Hampton roads were thousands of packages containing every imaginable Christmas gift, from a whisky flask to a smoking jacket, each package labeled, 'Don't open until Christmas.'"

"Along with those gifts, he sent thousands of yards of bunting to decorate the mastsheads of the battleships. It would be difficult to imagine a more beautiful sight than these ships lined up Christmas morning with the sailors breaking out the Christmas trimmings with as much zest as the small boy displays when he lights the candles on his Christmas tree."

"Then comes the opening of the Christmas packages. This is always a gala occasion. Not a man on board would dare ignore the instruction any more than he would think of disobeying his superior officer. It has become custom through years of faithful observance. Always a bottle of wine is broken in christening these tokens from the loved ones at home."

"If I hadn't been a lieutenant myself I wouldn't dare give away official secrets."

"Last year we practically had two Christmases. We received our first mail at Trinidad, West Indies, some time Christmas week and delayed Christmas mail reached us at Callao, when the vessels were approaching their own country on the western side."

"No nation provides more plentifully for the Christmas cheer of its sailors than does Uncle Sam. Each of the battleship crews has a dinner of roast turkey, plum pudding, pumpkin pie and all the trimmings which go with it. The men are served in messes of 20 at 12 o'clock and each man is allowed one snifter of grog as an appetizer, in celebration of the occasion."

"The officers dine at six o'clock, and, as is the custom when spending the holiday at sea, are guests of the commanding officer."

Christmas Musings.

There are warmer handshakes on this night, wrote Alexander Smith, than during the bygone 12 months. Friend lives in the mind of friend.

There is more charity at this time than at any other. Poverty and scanty clothing, and fireless grates come home to the bosoms of the rich and they give of their abundance. The very breadst of the woods enjoys his Christmas feast. Good feeling incarnates itself in plum pudding. The Master's word, "The poor ye have always with you," wear at this time a deep significance. For at least one night on each year over all Christendom there is brotherhood. And good men, sitting amongst their families, or by a solitary fire like me, when they remember the light that shone over the poor clowns huddling on the Bethlehem plains 1,800 years ago, the apparition of shining angels overhead, the song, "Peace on earth and good-will towards men," which for the first time hallowed the midnight air—pray for that strain's fulfillment, that battle and strife may vex the nations no more, that not only on Christmas eve, but the year round, men shall be brethren, owning one Father in heaven."

RICH MEN'S GIFTS ARE POOR besides this. "I want to go on record as saying that I regard Electric Bitters as one of the greatest gifts that God has made to women, writes Mrs. O. Rhine-vault, of Vestal Center, N. Y."

"I can never forget what it has done for me." This glorious medicine gives a woman buoyant spirits, vigor of body and jubilant health. It quickly cures Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, and Fainting and

100 YEARS OLD.

Grandma Sanderson, of DeWitt, Mo., Has Lived a Long and Useful Life.

Grandma Sanderson is a wonderful woman. She is in as good health today as ever in her life, although she is over one hundred years old.

In a letter to the Peruna Drug Mfg. Co., she gives the highest credit to Peruna for her excellent health and extreme old age. Read what she says.

Surely the evidence presented by such cases as these ought not only to dispel prejudice against Peruna, but inspire confidence in it.

"I will send you a picture that was taken a few weeks before my hundredth birthday."

"I am a true friend of the Peruna Company. I have derived great benefit from Peruna many times. I can say I regard Peruna a very great medicine. I found out the merit of it a good many years ago."

"A little more than two years ago I contracted a very severe cold, which resulted in la grippe. Owing to the severity of the disease, and my extreme age, my case was considered to be very critical. I employed no doctor, but Peruna was the remedy I used, and to-day my health is as good as it ever was in my life."

"However, I still continue to take Peruna, a spoonful every night before retiring."

Peruna is an ideal tonic for old people. It is a compound of herbal remedies that has been known to the medical profession for many years.

Peruna operates as a tonic by cleansing and invigorating the mucous membranes. This explains why Peruna has become so extensively known as a cathartic remedy. Catarrh is simply a condition of depraved mucous membranes. Peruna changes this depravity into healthful vigor.

A great many old people use Peruna, and would not be deprived of it for any other medicine.

MEMBER OF
KENTUCKY PRESS ASSOCIATION

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

We are authorized to announce HON. HARVEY HELM as a candidate to succeed himself as Representative from the Eighth Congressional District subject to the action of the Democratic party.

The Bourbon County farmers are preparing to organize a Farmers' Improved League. The object is to interest farmers in making their farms attractive, to induce them to keep their buildings and fences in good repair, fields clear of weeds and brush and the land in a high state of cultivation.

The Agricultural Department, at Frankfort, has been holding in the Counties of the State what has been known as the Farmers' Institute, which has been thrown into a political purposes. We have, heretofore, advised our farmers to have nothing to do with that organization, but this paper is much interested in the success of the farmers and we fully realize the importance of organization on the part of each land holder. A great many farms are sadly neglected, to the detriment of the farm and the costs of the owner. Farmers can profitably put in their spare time in improving the appearance of their fences and buildings.

In the Blue Grass the farmers have a justifiable pride in their appearance of their buildings.

thereof works wonders. A run down farm is an eye sore and requires much labor to be brought back to a state where it will be pleasing and attractive to the passing beholder. It also lessens its power of remuneration.

An organization of the farmers will be beneficial for the purpose of enhancing the pride of the farm products and advancing the general interest of the farmer. It will increase the value of the farm and have an effect upon the whole community. Let the farmers organize in Rockcastle, that farm land might be improved and that the farmer may receive a greater benefit from his labors.

If the Governor of Kentucky and the coming Legislature desire to do something to benefit Eastern Kentucky, they can well afford to pass and approve a bill taking the convicts out of the penitentiary and constructing a model road from Crab Orchard to Cumberland Gap.

Under the present constitution, convicts cannot be taken out of the penitentiary except for the purpose of state work. Such a bill, therefore, would not be in conflict with the constitution and would be the greatest move that Kentucky could make to build up the mountainous section. A broad modern thoroughfare constructed along the old State Road at the expense of the state, which would be small, if the convicts were required to do the work, would be of untold benefit to this section. Possibly such a road would not otherwise be built and as the convicts are worked now they come in contact with the best and most expert labor the country produces. The paving of them upon such work would not be to deprive the common laborers of employment because without the state doing the work possibly it would not be done at all.

We hope to see the Legislators take up such a movement and pass such beneficial legislation, for it would mean so very much to the mountainous counties which have always been neglected by the state authorities.

The main pikes of Central, Northern and Western Kentucky have way in the mountainous section. Something should be done by the Legislature and the Governor to start such a movement.

Colonel Jack Chinn, who was here Monday for the meeting of the State Racing Commission, discussed at some length recent criticisms of the saloon element that churches and other houses of worship were being used from time to time to propagate the political fight at present being waged to make Kentucky a "dry" State. Colonel Chinn notes the criticism with earnest purpose and agrees with the contention that no church should be used as a place for political propaganda, by either side, as the advocates of saloons or against them. He regards the matter purely political and to this end he will introduce a bill in the next General Assembly making it a misdemeanor even to discuss politics in a house of public worship. Colonel Chinn also believes that public school houses, when actually not in use for class work should be rendered available by statutory enactment for debates and public discussions of all kinds by leaders of thought in the various communities. He believes in the old fashioned debating society and his prospective measure is meant in no little sense to stimulate a revival of that interesting custom in Kentucky. —Lexington Gazette.

It glimmers like a star, and is gone.
What do we mortal to existence gain?
A drop of pleasure in a sea of pain.
Who breathes must suffer and who thinks must mourn,
The human race are sons of sorrow born.
Born to be plagued with years, and down with care,
Nursed with vain hope, and fed with doubtful fears.

Tired of beliefs, we dread to live without,
Yet who knows most, the more he knows is doubt.
None is a true soul ever born for naught,
Yet millions never think a noble thought.

Tis not in mortal's hand command success,
And endless toil brings naught but bitterness.
To-morrow's sun to thee may never rise,
The power that smiles to-day to-morrow dies.

Alas, what story is there in human state?
Man strives to conquer, and bows to fate,
Year chases year, decay pursues decay,
Swift to its close, goes out life's little day.

A DREAM OF LIGHT

Hail! Sacred dawn of glorious liberty!
Heaven's morning breaks, and earth's vain shadows flee.
This day is born a savior, Christ the Lord,
And man redeemed to Paradise restored.

Oh, holy trust! Oh, endless sense of rest!
Transcendence born to weary hearts oppressed:
Enriching all the common things of life,
Our balm in sorrow, and our stay in strife.

Hope springs eternal in the human breast,
And faith reveals a life divinely blest.
Good actions crown themselves with lasting days,
And God fulfills Himself in many ways.

Time well employed is Satan's deadliest foe,
And happiness oft comes from seeming woe.
Life's mysteries deep hid, elude our sight,
One truth is clear, whatever is is right.

Something remains for us to do or dare,
Emboldened Faith will counteract despair.
Life is not shadow but a promise given,
Of change from woe to joy, from earth to Heaven.

What Santa Brought

By W. D. Nesbit

Got the greatest Christmas gift a feller ever seen!
Haven't felt so tickled since the day he was seven.
When I got my long pants suit an' striped round the town
Lord! it among th' boys that looked on with a frown.
"I wasn't in a stockin' an' it was on a tree,
But it was a dandy gift that Santa brought to me!"

Give you twenty guesses, an' you couldn't guess it right—
Bet you couldn't guess it if you tried from now to night!
Come on Christmas morning, I was waitin' in the hall—
Couldn't shet my eyes in sleep since Christmas Eve at all.
Lord! I had the fidgets like I use to long ago
When I'd watch for Santa in the boy-days, don't you know!

No, it wasn't clippers, nor an auto, nor a tie—
'Tisn't any gimcrack thing that you can go an' buy!
Ain't another like it in the whole endurin' earth.
What? Why, I can't tell you how much money it is worth.
Just the thing I wanted, an' I simply want to say
It's the finest present ever come on Christmas day.

Doctor stepped to me an' he says: "I wish you joy,
It's a Christmas baby—yours, the daddy of a boy!"
Now, ain't that a present! Can you beat it in your life?
Isn't this a Christmas Day for me an' boy an' wife?
Bet the angels left him when they come to sing again
In their joyful chorus tellin' of good will to men.

Pudgy-wudgy baby, just a roly-poly tike
With a way of lookin' right straight at you, lovin' like
Say! He held my finger in his little velfer hand
With a grip o' goodness—But how can you understand
If you ain't been through it you can't know just what I mean—
Got the greatest Christmas gift a feller ever seen!

Pittsburg, Dec. 20.—Trainmen to the number of 75,000, employed on about twenty-five railroads east of the Mississippi river, to-day through officials of the brotherhood of Railway Trainmen at headquarters at Cleveland, O., formally notified the various divisions and railroads affected that a demand for an increase in wages amounting from 5 per cent. to 40 per cent. will be made on January 3. The agreement between the railroads and the trainmen necessitates a notice before a 14 demands can be made. The trainmen will wait until January 20 for an answer from the railroads, it is said.

According to W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, who is in this city attending the initiation of a number of men into the local here, the chief demand to be made was that the wages of conductors and their crew be standardized, which will mean increases for the various branches of the trainmen of from 5 to 40 per cent.

A strike is not yet contemplated said Mr. Lee. The trainmen believe that these demands will be granted Mr. Lee said the result of the recent referendum vote of the Eastern Association of the Brotherhood was canvassed at a meeting of the Executive Committee in Chicago Saturday, and that the result showed that they were almost unanimously in favor of presenting the demands and holding out for them until granted.

In Bad Fix

"I had a mishap at the age of 41, which left me in bad fix," writes Mrs. Georgia Usher, of Conyers, Ga.

"I was unconscious for three days, and after that I would have fainting spells, dizziness, nervousness, sick headache, heart palpitation and many strange feelings.

"I suffered greatly with ailments due to the change of life and had 3 doctors, but they did no good, so I concluded to try Cardui.

"Since taking Cardui, I am so much better and can do all my housework."

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Do not allow yourself to get into a bad fix. You might get in so bad you would find it hard to get out.

Better take Cardui while there is time, while you are still in moderately good health, just to conserve your strength and keep you in tip top condition.

In this way your troubles, whatever they are, will gradually grow smaller instead of larger—you will be on the "upward" of the downward—and by and bye you will be at the north pole of perfect health.

Get your Cardui today.
